

PERFORMERS

Sponsored by

PERFORMERS

Magic, puppets, and juggling—oh my! Our entertainers perform at the Timpanogos Pavilion throughout the day, but you just may meet them anywhere around the park.

Dal-Pal's Rigmarole

Dallin Blakenship is a full-time computer animation student nurturing a crazy puppet-building passion. He first ventured into the world of puppets a few years ago and has since cultivated a great love for bringing these little characters to life. Feel free to check out his blog where he posts most of his puppet-building adventures. thegoldengluegun.blogspot.com

Dr. Bruce

Magician, puppeteer, storyteller, and balloon-twister extraordinaire, Bruce Chamberlain also spends his spare time as a full-time hospice director and medical doctor. He performs in schools, in elevators, and at the occasional Bar Mitzvah. A master of distraction, Bruce will delight and entertain children of all ages, so grab the kids and pull up a chair—Dr. Bruce is sure to deliver.

The Gashlers

Teresa and Stephen have been entertaining audiences for over eight years, performing obscure folk tales, original music, and downright silliness with their all-star cast of animals, monsters, fairies, and dragons. In addition to puppetry, Steve and Teresa are award nominees and winners for their storytelling, plays, novels, music, and short films. You can listen to their new album on their website. thegashlers.com

Joe & Isaac Flores

A couple of the most creative and entertaining mimes you'll ever meet, Joe & Isaac Flores are sometimes serious, usually hilarious, and always a delight. Joe can make you believe anything—and all without saying a word! Joe is also president of the Utah Puppetry Guild and works for Robotronics, Inc. as a robot designer.

Jugglers

You will be amused and entertained throughout the day by Sam Holley, Joshua Wartena, and Noah Kershnik. These wonderful jugglers will travel around the park delighting audiences of all ages.

Jugglenutz

Come see why Utah's premier comedy juggling team has won so many state championships. Mark Nelson and Brent Jensen juggle anything and everything from flaming torches to knives, bowling pins to little balls—both on and off their unicycles. And, if these amazing feats aren't enough, you'll be sure to giggle through the comedy routines. Jugglenutz is a favorite for all ages. jugglenutz.com

Mark Pulham's mp3 Players

Get ready for a real treat as Mark Pulham and friends join together at the Festival. Mark is a longtime teacher, librarian, actor, and puppeteer in Utah Valley. Mark and Amy White, employees of the Orem Public Library, combine years of experience and talent to create zany fun and follies.

Magic with Milo and Kate

Theron Milo has performed magic and sleight of hand for over 12 years. He was introduced to magic in elementary school and has been obsessed with the craft ever since. He specializes in stand up and parlor magic. Recently, Theron became the house magician for the famous Brick Oven restaurant in Provo, Utah. You can find him performing close-up magic there every Monday, Friday, and Saturday between 6:00–8:00 p.m. magicmilo.weebly.com

Maxed Out Puppetry

Maxed Out Puppetry has been sharing their wacky puppet comedy with Utah audiences since 1998. Maxed Out is an eclectic bunch who also performs sketch and improvisational comedy and will keep you in stitches. Crafting stories and performances to tickle the funny bones of adults and children alike, these performers are perfect if you like zany stuff (and even if you think you don't!). maxedoutpuppetry.com

Nat Reed

Nat Reed is a maker of things. As the technical director and resident designer for the SCERA Center for the Arts, Nat gets to make everything from dragon heads and big-mouth birds to burlap trees and giant nutcrackers. He has designed puppets for Charlotte's Web, Taming of the Shrew, and Stellaluna, and he is now the puppetry instructor for SCERA and BYU as well as festival director for the Puppetry Arts Guild of Utah.

Pulley Puppets

Pulley Puppets is a family of puppeteers who have been performing their funny, entertaining, and witty shows all around the valley. From the young to the young-at-heart, they enjoy creating new stories or taking familiar stories and putting a special twist on them. Pulley Puppets love watching literature come alive through the art of puppetry. Pulley Puppets are members of the Utah Puppetry Guild and members of Puppeteers of America. pulleypuppets.blogspot.com

Puppetales

Lela and David Allmendinger are a husband and wife puppeteer team who enjoy causing laughter and seeing smiles from children and adults alike. Lela has been a storyteller and puppeteer at the Springville Library for five years and has recently thrown David into the theater. David is a voice talent and narrator, and Lela is the mastermind who makes many of her own puppets.

Tattle Tales

Kathy Adams and Cindy Taylor have combined their amazing stories and adorable puppets to create Tattle Tales. Cindy and Kathy have long recognized the power of puppets to reach and teach children. They love to watch the faces of their audiences, both young and old, light up as they tell their tales. What could be more fun than spending time with Tattle Tales and "laughing while learning"?

Whizgiggle's Puppets

What do librarians, puppets, and children's books have in common? Whizgiggle's Puppets of course! Combining the magic of hand and shadow puppetry, The Salt Lake City Public Library's very own home-grown puppet troupe has been entertaining audiences for years with their zany storytime antics and hilarious puppet performances. Join Paul Musser, Deanna Romriell, and Sarah Tumpowsky as they put on a show that is sure to take audiences to a whole new level of fun.

