Pick one story you would like to share and develop.

1. In the space below, write words, and/or draw symbols or scenes from your story. These words and drawings can help you remember important details and ideas to prompt your memory. They are just for you, and don't need to make sense to anyone but you.

2. Share your story with a partner and then listen to your partner's story. Write down three questions that might clarify the story they told or questions you have after hearing their story. After you each have shared your stories, talk to each other about the questions you each wrote down.
